Dublin.—A motion to reelect Eamon De Valera president of the Irish republic and head of the dail government, was defeated in the Irish Parliament Monday afternoon by a vote of 60 to 58.

Following his resignation Monday afternoon on a republican platform. He was nominated by Mrs. Clarke.

The dail refused to accept its former chief by the narrow majority of two votes.

De Valera will carry the issue of free state or republic to the country.

Monday even more than Saturday, when the dail by a vote of 64 to 57, voted to ratify the peace treaty with Great Britain whereby Ireland joins the British commonwealth, was a critical day in Irish affairs.

Formal resignation of De Valera, followed by an appeal to the Irish people to maintain the fight for complete independence was expected.

The dail, following De Valera's resignation, which was temporarily tabled, began discussion of the procedure necessary for forming a new government.

O'Keeley, one of the whips of the De Valera faction, urged the dail to maintain the machinery of the Irish republic until assured that England would keep her promises.

Michael Collins, McKeeown and other friends of the treaty leaped to their feet.

"We'll fight—all of us, if she don't," they exclaimed.

Efforts were made by supporters of the treaty, led by Michael Collins, to have a joint committee of friends and foes of the compact with Great Britain established to continue the work of the dail, but De Valera was adamant in his demand the southern parliament elect new officers.

The former president will seek to win the majority of the dail to his side and failing this, announced, it was announced it was his intention to go to the country with the issue of independence.

Varnish Was Mistaken For Church Wine

By United Press Leased Wire

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Eight elders of the Seventh Reformed church here, who drank varnish stain which was mistaken for sacramental wine, were in a serious condition Monday.

The congregation at the church Sunday started a near panic when the elders staggered from the pulpit after taking the first sip from the communion cup.

The pastor, the Rev. D. A. Van Lummel had just finished his morning sermon.

It was reported that a new elder took the varnish from the church storehouse, believing it to be sacramental wine.

NAVAL HOLIDAY TO BE 15 YEARS INSTEAD OF 10

Experts Drafting Treaty Allow Sufficient Time to Make Reductions Possible

Washington.—The five great powers are to bind themselves to a program of naval reduction and limitation for fifteen years instead of the ten year period of the naval holiday, it was said.

This is to give the naval holiday sufficient time to be put into practical effect, it was explained and to allow the naval establishments of the powers to be put on the replacement tonnage ratio basis which has been agreed upon, after the conclusion of the holiday.

The question of arming merchant ships as a safeguard against submarine attack is not touched by the new treaty, it was learned, but the other phase of the merchant ship question—that of conversion into armed fighting ships—has been taken up and certain restrictions are included in the treaty.

There are about 23 or 24 main clauses in the treaty.

The conference Monday decided to place no limitation on aircraft, other than the restrictions already imposed on airplane carriers.

It adopted the experts' sub-committee report, recommending against limitation but voted the appointment of special commission to make up later the question of making rules for aerial warfare.

EXPECT TO POSTPONE NEW TRIAL OF "FATTY"

San Francisco.—Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle was in San Francisco Monday to face his second trial on a charge of causing the death of Virginia Rappe.

His wife, Minta Durfee, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Marie Durfee were with him.

Arbuckle's case was scheduled to be called formally in Judge Harold Londerback's court Monday, but the judge previously announced it would be continued at least for a few days. It was believed it would be put over until Wednesday.

Simple Shoes To Grace Feet This Spring

Chicago.—Cinderellas—300 gorgeous ones—put the kick in the nation's shoe style show here Monday.

Thousands flocked to the mammoth Coliseum to attend the National Shoe Retailers' association exhibition and departed without seeing a shoe.

Perfect three A's, model four B's, plain fives, and sizes on the double E last were waited down the mile of runway by the strains of a lively march.

It took a whole year to carefully foot-pick the models from all over the United States. All of them furnished a thrill, even as Cinderella two minutes before the midnight gong changed.

The season's shoe and slipper will be neater and simpler, lacking beads, straps and buckles. The price to the shoe-winner will be a trifle less.

Part of the style show was devoted to instructing the public in methods of choosing correct-fitting shoes.

Miss Marjorie MacGregor personally fitted shocking stockings to demonstrate that correct shoe fitting starts with the hose.

"Shoes and stockings go foot in foot," she explained.

BRITISH AND FRENCH MUST SOLVE CRISIS

Private Capital Won't Respond Until Allies Adjust Basis of European Troubles

HOOVER OUTLINES NEEDS

British Attitude Toward Reparations Will Find Ready Ear in United States

By David Lawrence

Copyright, 1922, by Post Pub. Co.

Washington.—Economic reconstruction in Europe cannot come too soon to please the United States government and while the issuance of an invitation to America to attend the big economic conference to be held in Genoa, Italy, implies very little at this time, nevertheless, opinion is crystallizing that the real plan for world relief must come out of French and British diplomacy.

Prime Minister Lloyd George's emphasis on the necessity of Europe helping itself without depending too much on America is looked upon here as a direct appeal to the Washington conference.

The British representatives here have not failed to keep the prime minister posted on the official view of the American government and it is significant that in the very first speech he has made to the audience at the Washington conference, the prime minister pointed out the American position and urged the French and other continental nations to get together on a European plan that will merit outside support.

HOOVER'S PLAN

The British government informally met yesterday afternoon by Secretary Hoover what seemed to be the essential to economic reconstruction apart, of course, from the vital question of reduced military and naval armaments. Mr. Hoover expressed his views orally at first and then summarized them in writing for the British as follows:

"1. A balance in taxation and expenditure.

"2. Currency reorganization and stabilization.

"3. Wise control of their exports and imports.

"4. Credits for reproductive purposes.

"It is hopeless to expect that private capital will extend credits for these states upon any systematic basis, until the first three have been complied with. Furthermore, attempts to secure these three vital reforms by action through various governments foreign to them, risks being wrecked on the rocks of conflicting political objectives of such governments.

"The Ter Molen plan proposes to facilitate credits for exports by the ordinary processes of business free from political action, when these three primary reforms have been initiated. This should act as a great incentive to secure the reforms and if accomplished is at once nine-tenths of the battle for rehabilitation of credits and commerce with these states."

The Ter Molen plan to which Mr. Hoover refers was evolved at the last international financial conference at Brussels and embraced the listing of all available assets of the business men of each country and the issuance by governments of certain bonds against those assets which would be in the nature of a collateral or guarantee of payment for purchases made in foreign countries. The plan does not apply either to Germany or Russia.

IS PRACTICAL QUESTION

The viewpoint here, however, is closer to that held by the British than the French. When Mr. Lloyd George says that political action is no more symptomatic of Germany than it was during the war but that the amount Germany can pay is not a sentimental but a practical question, his ideas find a ready echo in American official circles. The French and British have developed strained relations on this point and until the Washington conference produced a deadlock on the submarine issue, the disposition was to take a more or less indifferent view toward the French-British split. The drift lately has been to support the British contention that economic reconstruction can never be accomplished, but through material examination of the economic facts in the whole situation.

WILL SELL GRAIN IN BIG MARKETS

Chicago.—Sales facilities at principal grain markets will be established by the United States Grain Growers, Inc.

Executive officers have been given full authority to complete arrangements by the board of directors.

Sales connections will be made in Chicago, Indianapolis, Omaha, Kansas City, Oklahoma City and St. Paul or Minneapolis, it is announced.

More than 35,000 farmers have contracted with the Grain Growers, representing approximately 100,000,000 bushels of grain, according to H. Gustafson, president of the organization.

The first annual convention will be held in Chicago March 21.

Find Father Didn't Take Head From Girl

By United Press Leased Wire

Winona, Minn.—Public curiosity was appeased and police were satisfied Monday that Thomas Bloch did not behold the body of his daughter when he opened her grave because of a superstition.

Chief of Police Riebau reopened the grave of Frances Bloch Sunday to make sure that Bloch told the truth.

More than a week ago it was discovered that some one had opened the grave of the girl and her brother Joseph. The father was questioned and said he was impelled to do it by superstitious neighbors.

Since the daughter died five years ago, five sons have died. Driven almost frantic, Bloch listened to the superstition that the deaths would continue in the family unless the daughter's body was beheaded, and the head placed at her feet. Bloch with a neighbor opened the grave. He maintained he did not disturb the body, however. Police and the post-mortem were not satisfied of this until proven.

The body was found to be mostly decomposed. No action will be taken against Bloch.

COL. HARVEY HURT AT CANNES WHEN HURLED FROM CAR

American Ambassador Is Rendered Unconscious but Injuries are not Serious

Cannes, France.—American Ambassador George Harvey was hurled from his automobile in a collision here Monday and rendered unconscious.

A bulletin issued from Carlton hotel, where he was being treated, said that Harvey, 52, was a physician and others at the hotel declared the ambassador who struck on his head had no serious injuries which would keep him in bed for two or three days. His injuries, the bulletin said, in the dorsal and lumbar regions, were not serious.

Harvey was rendered unconscious for more than an hour and it was at first feared his injuries were serious.

Three doctors working to restore Harvey to health.

Richard Crane, former minister of Czechoslovakia, and Wickham Steed, editor of the London Times, were in the accident, which occurred when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a speeding car.

Steed also was injured. Harvey with Crane and Steed was driving along the sea road beside the Mediterranean, bound for a game of golf at the Cannes links. An automobile driven at terrific speed whirled up behind them and struck the rear of the American ambassador's machine, breaking the wheels.

Harvey was thrown out, striking his forehead. Wickham Steed was thrown out and hurt. Crane escaped injury.

HERRICK IN CHARGE

Washington.—Myron T. Herrick, American ambassador to France, will attend the Cannes conference pending the recovery of Ambassador Harvey from injuries received in an automobile accident. Harvey notified the state department Monday.

Harvey reported that his injuries were not serious.

RUSSIA WILL MEET ALLIES; ACCEPT TERMS

Lloyd George Outlines Conditions Under Which Soviets May Confer at Genoa

By United Press Leased Wire

Moscow.—Soviet Russia has received and decided to accept an invitation from the allied supreme council to attend the economic conference proposed for Genoa in March.

Conditions laid down by the allies for Russian participation in the conference, which is to seek the rehabilitation of Europe, will be met.

From information obtained in Soviet circles, it was learned that Lloyd George, confident of the success of his proposal to the Cannes conference, had invited Russia to meet the allies this year, arranged in advance with Krassin, the soviet's London representative, terms of the conditions that would be required. Recently they agreed to the following as a tentative basis for Russian participation in an international economic conference.

1. Dejure recognition of the soviet by the allies.

2. The Moscow government shall assume the debts of previous Russian governments.

3. Citizens of other countries who have lost their wealth through the Russian revolution shall be indemnified. (This shall apply only in the case of citizens of countries which recognize the soviet.)

4. The soviet government will guarantee private property rights in Russia.

It was believed here the preliminary arguments concerning Russian participation at Genoa would recommend a loan by the allies to the soviet government.

PLAN EUROPEAN PACT

Cannes, France.—A new treaty, signed by all the nations of Europe including Germany, binding the signatories to respect the territorial integrity of their neighbors, was proposed Monday by Premier Briand of France.

The French premier met with Lloyd George in a private conversation at the Cannes Golf club. He outlined his plan for an all European agreement, which besides respect for territory, would pledge each nation not to attack any of the others.

FIRE RUINS HOME OF OLDEST PAIR IN U. S.

Abrams, Wis.—Holding hands as they gazed at the ruins of the home which has sheltered them for almost three quarters of a century, Mr. and Mrs. James Bell, aged 104 and 102, made plans to start all over.

Out of the ashes of their burned home arose the picture of the home which they intended to build in the spring. Tears came into their eyes as they gazed upon the smoldering ruins of what had once been their home and which contained their life long savings, which went with the home.

But the old couple was undaunted. "We'll have to start all over again," said Bell as he surveyed his ruins.

"It's too bad I had to lose that quilt," said Mrs. Bell as she wiped away a tear. Mrs. Bell was making a quilt for her "little girl," Mrs. M. A. Schullif, who is 76 years old.

The Bells said to be the oldest living couple in the United States, are picturesque. Bell has not missed a day in the last half century in walking to the postoffice here every evening to get the papers for his wife to read to him. Mrs. Bell does her own housework and milks one cow.

ACCUSE FARMERS OF BLASTING DAM

Bloodhounds Trail Dynamiters Who Caused Serious Explosion Sunday

By United Press Leased Wire

St. Cloud, Minn.—After following the trail of the Cold Spring dam dynamiters 15 miles up river, a posse with bloodhounds was resting Monday morning. Bloodhounds employed were nearly exhausted.

An explosion early Sunday shattered the windows in the vicinity of the Cold Springs dam on the Sauk river. The Rockville Granite company's plant was slightly damaged.

Authorities believe the dynamite charge was set by farmers upstream who have been fighting the dam for the last 25 years.

An explosion less than a year ago caused $10,000 damages to the structure.

Farmers have fought in court to abolish the dam and cases have been carried to the state supreme court. They allege the waters held by the dam destroy their crops and cause them heavy losses.

Bloodhounds arrived Sunday night and took up the trail of the supposed dynamiters and followed it 15 miles upstream to a point near Richmond. The trail was to be resumed about noon.

CLARIFY PACT THEN SIGN UP, JOHNSON SAYS

California Senator Says Civilization Cannot Afford to See U. S. Used Up

By United Press Leased Wire

San Francisco.—"We are the one nation left and civilization cannot afford to see us used up," Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California declared Monday in a statement issued in opposition to the new quadruple alliance for peace in the Pacific.

"The present conference is a hodgepodge of nations and it is impossible to see possible only because our country had been left free and independent and was not a part of the rope of sand of things," he commented.

Johnson's statement was in a way an answer to statements attacking his stand on the alliance, issued last week by California political spokesmen.

"We cannot afford to enter into ambiguous contracts, and then indulge in prolonged and irritating controversies as to their meaning," Johnson said.

TOO MUCH DISCUSSION

"Already the new quadruple alliance is the subject of hot discussion. According to the men who made it, it included the mainland of Japan. According to the dispatches tell us now that while it does include Japan proper, there will be some sort of an exclusion of notes to eliminate Japan proper. Why then was Japan included originally?"

"Again, the advocates of the treaty in California insist there is no obligation contained in it. The advocates of the treaty in the east, frankly admit and gleefully boast that the obligation is exactly the same as the obligation that was contained in the league of nations."

Johnson ended with a claim that if the United States were bound under the eight-nation pact, the Washington conference never would have been possible.

"If we scrap the traditional policy of the United States and become a part of the old order by secret alliances and treaties which entangle us in old world controversies, the possibility of our helpfulness to the world is imperiled and the hope of civilization is gone," he concluded.

ACCOUNTING EXPERT TALKS TO RETAILERS

One of the most noted authorities in retail merchandising in the country will lecture in the vocational school at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening when William E. Koch, Kansas City, Mo., will deliver an address as part of the lecture course on salesmanship.

His subject will be "Accounting methods in retail merchandising."

Koch is connected with the National Retail Merchants' association of Chicago.

Mr. Koch was originally scheduled to speak here Wednesday evening but it was necessary to advance the date to Tuesday because of exceptional one day.

His lecture is of exceptional interest to every businessman whose work involved accounting, according to W. S. Ford, director of the vocational school.

Michigan Senator Breaks Long Silence In Defense

Calls on God to Witness His Innocence—Didn't Know What Campaign Managers Were Doing—Surprised Himself at Expenses

Washington.—Calling on God to witness his innocence, Truman H. Newberry, in the senate Monday defended himself for the first time against the charge that his seat there was "bought and paid for" through extravagant use of campaign funds.

"As God is my witness," said Newberry, "I am not to this day and hour conscious of having done in connection with either the primary campaign or the general election of 1918 a single act that was or is in any way unlawful, dishonorable or corrupt, and this I say to the senate of the United States without reservation or qualification."

As Newberry took the floor to make the speech that probably will determine whether he is to retain his seat, his Democratic and Republican foes were ready to attack him with a cross fire of pointed questions.

His direct defense to the exchange that he was a party to, and had a part in the collection and expenditure of a vast sum of money as primary campaign that won him the Republican nomination against Henry Ford, was summed up in these words:

"I did not solicit or expend, directly or indirectly, one single dollar in the campaign for senator in Michigan in 1918. Nor did I know of the contributions made until his friends over and over again throughout his speech Newberry repeated: 'I did not know.' In fact, he said, it was with 'astonishment and regret' that he learned the primary campaign had cost $185,000. But the use of this money, he said, was necessary, in the opinion of his friends who were managing his campaign.

AMOUNT WAS LARGE

"The amount expended was large," said Newberry, "more than I had any idea was being expended and more than ought to be necessary to spend in any ordinary campaign. But this was not an ordinary campaign."

"I shall not dwell at length upon the reasons which the committee thought imperatively demanded a campaign of newspaper publicity involving this expenditure of money."

"I can only say that I regret exceedingly the fact that so large an amount of money was necessarily expended. I can further say that in the solicitation of that money, in the collection of that money, in the use of that money, I had nothing whatever to do. I knew nothing whatever about it, not even the amount of it."

"I make this statement, not to escape any responsibility in the matter as to actual facts in the matter as to what they may be presented to the senate."

LET SENATE JUDGE

Newberry told his colleagues who are also to be his judges that "upon these facts, as I then believed them to be, and as I now believe them to be, I shall abide the result with a clear conscience."

At the outset Newberry told the senate that he was impelled to break his long silence by the fear that his friends might misconstrue that silence if he continued to the end.

He asked that he be permitted to make his statement uninterrupted and warned those who were prepared to heckle and question him that he had nothing to add, no more information to give, beyond that contained in his prepared speech.

He then reviewed the circumstances leading up to his decision to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for senator.

He told of the in the early fall of 1917, he began to receive visits and letters from men in public and political affairs in Michigan, urging him to become a candidate.

ESTIMATE WAS $50,000

Then Newberry recited details of the appointment of Paul H. King as campaign manager, and how King, a former political opponent, visited him in New York. King told him he thought the campaign would cost $50,000, Newberry said.

He saw King only half a dozen times during the campaign, and at times during the campaign, he was kept in New York. King was kept in New York, he said, because of the fact that King was going on, in the form of an intensive publicity campaign, but had no idea as to its cost or where the money was coming from to pay for it, he repeated.

It is gratifying to him, Newberry said, that at no time during the various legal and legislative investigation of the campaign was there any suggestion of moral turpitude or bribery or corruption attached to his campaign managers.

"Nor was there any evidence, so far as I have been able to learn," he said, "that a single dollar was spent dishonestly for corruption or bribery."

Newberry said the only money he gave in any

HIGH QUALITY OF HOGS TO BE SALE FEATURE

At Least Forty Hogs Will Be Offered for Sale Here Wednesday

Quality of animals selected will be the outstanding feature of the second annual bred sow sale of Outagamie County Duroc-Jersey Breeders' association at 1:30 Wednesday afternoon in the armory. With last year's experience as a guide and the ready cooperation of owners of high class litters, the sale hogs will far exceed those of the 1921 sale, officials in charge say.

Accommodations have been arranged in the armory basement for a much larger number of people than attended last year's sale. The association wants every farmer in the county to come and see the display of swine even though he may not buy.

Forty animals will be brought to the city Tuesday in readiness for the sale. The sales committee, judging by the sentiment throughout the county, believes its ambition will be fulfilled to start more farmers on the road to profit by raising purebred red hogs.

With arrangements and the program completed for the opening banquet of Wisconsin Duroc-Jersey Breeders' association at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening in the French room of the Sherman house, committees now are busy urging all breeders of red hogs from this locality to attend. The addresses and discussions will be of value to all swine breeders, they believe.

Supreme Court Justice is Guest of Honor of Local Attorneys

Judge M. B. Rosenberg of the Wisconsin Supreme Court, who delivered an address before the People's Forum at Lawrence memorial hall Sunday evening, will be guest of honor at a banquet given by Outagamie County Bar association in the French room of the Sherman house Saturday evening.

In the absence of A. H. Krugmiller, president, Claude G. Cannon acted as toastmaster. In a brief address following the banquet Judge Rosenberg told of the working of the supreme court and how cases are assigned to the various judges.

He also said we hear a great deal about law enforcement but very little about law observance. The duty of seeing that the law is observed devolves upon the bar more than anyone else, he said.

Among the members of the bar association who made brief talks were Judge E. V. Werner, Judge John Bottensack, T. H. Ryan and F. S. Bradford.

Babson Organization Speaker Here Thursday to Explain Readjustment

This year will be one of the fiercest business competition the United States has ever experienced.

Such is the opinion of H. C. Baldwin of Babson's statistical organization who will speak at the members' forum dinner of Appleton Chamber of Commerce Thursday evening.

Mr. Baldwin breaks another popular bubble when he says that the best business in 1922 will be done by those districts which first experienced the wave of depression and felt it the hardest. He names the New England states, New York and New Jersey as the states which will be most prosperous this year.

In his opinion business men and manufacturers in these states have been forced to adjust their business and their production on a new basis of bed rock economy. Their consequent lower costs of production will give them the advantage over competitors in other sections, he believes, because elsewhere the costs of production have not been readjusted in the same proportion.

Reservations for the dinner are coming in rapidly and all those who plan to hear Mr. Baldwin are urged to make their reservations now.

Detroit Man Gains Twenty Pounds By Taking Tanlac And Is Now On Job Every Day

"If there was ever a day in my life when I felt better than I do now I can't remember it; for Tanlac restored my health and built me up twenty pounds in weight, besides," said Charles Sunderland, 2750 Springwells Ave., Detroit, Mich.

"I suffered a general breakdown in health six years ago, my kidneys bothered me a great deal, I had pains in my back so bad I could hardly stoop over to lace up my shoes. My stomach went wrong, and I got to where I couldn't eat and relish anything. The little I did eat pained me terribly, and at night was pressed against my heart so bad I was often afraid to go to sleep for fear I would smother. I lost twenty-six pounds in weight and had to give up my trade as a moulder and take lighter work. Well, before I had taken half a bottle of Tanlac I could see it was helping me. My stomach trouble gradually left me, and in a little while I was eating and sleeping well and I soon felt fine in every way. This was two years ago that I took Tanlac, but it toned up my system so thoroughly that I am feeling in the best of health yet."

Tanlac is sold in Appleton by Voigt Drug Co. and by leading druggists everywhere. adv.

WIND DRIFTS COUNTRY ROADS FULL OF SNOW

A stiff wind Sunday drifted the north and south roads badly in this locality and autoists out for an afternoon drive encountered large drifts which stalled many machines. Machines were marooned in the snow on the Mackville rd. and also on the Brickyard rd. near Carter's woods. Some of them had to hire neighboring farmers to pull them out with horses.

BUY YOUR FOOTWEAR REQUIREMENTS NOW

VALUES IN ALL STYLES OF Women's Footwear

An opportunity to buy correctly styled Footwear at a price advantage is always of interest to women, for they, with their different costumes require so many individual pairs.

Even high Shoes so in demand for this Winter weather have been sharply reduced. Walking Oxfords in an exceedingly wide style variety make it profitable to select one pair for immediate wear and another for early Spring.

Evening Slippers and Strapped Footwear compose another great group. The pair you want is priced very reasonably.

Just the Shoes the Boy Needs Now

Have you looked at your Boy's Shoes recently for worn down soles, scuffed toes or general shabbiness? Like as not he needs a sturdy new pair for school; you know how closely Boys' Shoes have to be watch.

MAIL CARRIER RECALLS WHEN ROADS WERE BAD

Destruction of Rail Fences and Cutting of Brush Has Helped Matters

Roads in Outagamie-co. are badly drifted since last Wednesday's storm but John H. Freude, rural carrier since rural delivery was instituted in Appleton postoffice 20 years ago, can remember the time when they were a whole lot worse.

"When we got back to the postoffice late at night after struggling through the drifts all day," Mr.
Freude said, "we are convinced the roads are bad enough. But they're not near as bad as they used to be away back 20 years ago and more. In those days the old rail fences still lined the roadsides all over the county and were effective windbreaks allowing the snow to pile up between them till it was as deep as the top fence rail.

"No attempts were made to keep the roads clear and each farmer had to look out for himself. When driving a few miles one was frequently forced to get out and shovel his way through. The rural carriers could seldom cover their whole route in a day and mail delivery service through the country was badly impaired the entire winter.

"Now with the county doing what it can to break the snow blockade and with the townships and individuals cooperating, winter road conditions are much improved. Twenty years ago it was sometimes impossible for farmers to drive to the store after provisions and they were forced to make the trip on foot and take home what they could in a basket.
After every slight blow the snow blockade was renewed and the people were forced to stay at home practically all winter except for an occasional visit or party with a nearby neighbor.

"Cutting of weeds and brush along main county highways has also reduced drifting. If this were done more it would be a big help to those who travel the roads in winter. The work the city has done this year has helped considerably and Eugene Kozlemann has also done some effective road clearing on the Brickyard rd.
The hilly stretches by Lawrence Pierce's, Albert Krueger's, Harry Leppia's and the old Spencer farm have usually drifted badly but "snow fences" heaped up along the roadside at these places have helped greatly in keeping the road open this winter."

BADGER THRESHERMEN MEET IN FOND DU LAC

State meetings of the Wisconsin
Brotherhood of Threshermen Insurance company and the Wisconsin Threshermen's association both of which have their main offices in Fond du Lac will be held in the Association of Commerce rooms at Fond du Lac, Jan. 10 and 11.
The insurance company will hold its sessions the opening day when election of officers will be held and an address will be given by a representative of the industrial commission.
The association of threshermen will meet on the second day and will also elect officers and transact current business.

Association Offers Special Prizes for Best Pen Exhibits
at Annual Show

In order to encourage the improvement of the average farm chicken flock the Fox River Valley Poultry and Pet Stock association will give $7 for first, $5 for second and $3 for third prize for the best flock of ten birds exhibited by any farmer in Outagamie county in the annual poultry show to be given by the association in Armory G the last week in January. The display must consist of ten males and eight females and all stock to be standard bred, raised and owned by the exhibitor. These birds will not be scored or judged for show points but compared, one display against another.

A nominal entry fee of $1 will be charged for each display of ten birds.
This class is limited to farmers who have no show stock in the open class.
Full prizes will be awarded only where there are at least five entries in a class. In case that less than five entries are made in a class, 50 percent of the prizes will be awarded.

Another Business Girl Takes Rap At Growing Generation Of Males

Young Woman Complains That Average Young Man is Not Interested in Consequential Affairs of Life

Many men have suggested that they would like to have their say about the modern young women and they claim boldly for themselves that they have the best of the argument.
Maybe so, and you are at liberty to write whatever you think, whether you are what one of the writers calls a "curbanging, corner clinging" young man or merely an interested reader of these letters. You may approach the subject of the matrimonial situation from either the stand point of the man or of the girl.
The women themselves continue to be divided in their interests, some condemning while others are praising the men. A second business girl repeats the argument of the first while the Working Girl takes a whack at the college students. A girl who seems to have seen a great deal of the way women pursue young men also writes her opinion. Your opinion will be appreciated if you send it signed to the contest editor. Your signature is only an evidence of good faith and your identity will not be revealed.

The second business girl writes:
"Dear Sir—This is the opportunity which I have been waiting for for some time and hope that at least a few Appleton young men will profit by the opinions so clearly expressed by the young women.
"I have worked in an office as a stenographer for nearly four years and am sure office work is not all pleasure as some seem to think.
Working from 8 to 12 and 1 to 5, six days a week and 52 weeks in the year grows rather monotonous but I would not give up my position with its hardships to marry any of the men
I have met so far.
"I could never love a man who frets more over the sauce on a plate than over the looking of a nation.
The man I marry must be something besides an epicure of food, connoisseur of clothes and perfectly cultured topics of conversation. The average young man of today is not interested in actual existence or the fundamental things of life, but just sits on the side lines and amuses spectators or rather tries to amuse himself. When I marry I want a regular man for my husband and father of my children.

Stenographer.
And this from the working girl:
"Dear Sir—I think that there is a time in most every girl's life when she would like to marry and settle down. But when I take a husband I want him to be reasonable and consider that I am just as human as he is and when he wants to be treated right, he must not forget me.
"A man says: "You can never learn to know a woman." Very ignorant of him as I've found the same thing about men. I think a woman may be as good or as bad a man is. He has nothing to hollar about. I don't believe in marrying a man for his money and I guess if I had one whom I really didn't love I would treat him pretty mean.
"If I was of rich parents or struck something good and could provide for the rest of my life and live comfortably I would let all the men go to the "dogs." College students could all take a jump in the "creek" for my part. I would never consider one of them as an ideal husband. As for smoking it's perfectly alright, providing he doesn't smoke too much.

"Working Girl."
And last, but not least, the girl who has watched the way in which other girls try to get dates. She writes:
"Dear Sir—From my own experience I find many boys who are very courteous and respectful, and we have young men roomers in our home and have had for years. However, many girls do not wait for the considerations due them from the young men.
"When a nice young man comes to our city it isn't long before one or more girls are telephoning him, leading him along with foolish conversation until the opportunity opens for her to suggest a date. He generally refuses but this does not worry her she keeps right after him. If she succeeds, does he owe her anything more than the treatment she gets? I think not.
"If many girls did not frequent these questionable dance halls our young men would have no such places to go. Boys never smoke cigars in our home, but why speak of cigars?
until this practice is wiped out among the future mothers? If every girl would make up her mind to become a model future mother, I am sure the boys will quickly accept the challenge since the making of these future fathers lies not in the hands of a few girls but in the hands of all the girls of our United States.

"Respected Girl."

TWO MEETINGS OF CHURCH MEMBERS

So much business is to be transacted at the annual meeting of the First Congregational church that two evenings will be devoted to the task this year. The first gathering will be held at 7:30 Thursday evening of this week, and the second, with social features, Thursday evening, Jan. 19.

Detailed reports of the trustees and treasurer will be heard at this week's meeting. The proposed church budget of $22,000 will be discussed and adopted. Other matters connected largely with the business administration of the church will be brought up for action. Every member of the parish is expected to attend this gathering.

Supper will be served at the second session next week, after which condensed reports will be shown by stereopticon on a screen in the auditorium. Officers will be elected for the ensuing year.

"Pape's Cold Compound" is Quickest Relief Known

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffing! A dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" taken every two hours until three doses are taken usually breaks up a cold and ends all gripe misery.
The first dose opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages of head; stops nose running; relieves headache, dullness, feverishness, sneezing.
"Pape's Cold Compound" is the quickest, surest relief known and costs only a few cents at drug stores. It acts without assistance. Tastes nice.

IRELAND RATIFIES

Ireland could not afford to reject the treaty of peace. That is why it was ratified. It may not represent all that those who favored its acceptance might desire, but it is the way to peace and to self-government. The bitter-enders were caught in their own inconsistencies, for if what they demanded was complete separation and a republic then they never should have entered into negotiations with Lloyd George nor have permitted others to do so. The conferences from beginning to end were predicated on Ireland's remaining within the empire, and every time De Valera consented to meet British representatives he committed his country that much deeper to dominion association. In the final chapter, the issue was between the reasonable, practical people of Ireland and the little body of extralegal hotheads in the dail who put formula above fact, who made a fetish of an idea without regard to consequences.

The truth is few people in Ireland expected to make a republic stand. They were prepared all along to accept independence within the empire, and that is what they have secured. Ratification is a triumph for sane judgment and speaks more eloquently than anything else of the political capacity of the Irish. This judgment prevailed throughout the nation and when it came to a showdown it manifested itself to a degree which caused an apparently reluctant dail to bow to the inevitable.

The whole world will rejoice in the conclusion of peace and understanding between Great Britain and Ireland. While the greater triumph lies with Great Britain, in that her concessions represent a complete abandonment of principle adhered to through centuries of conflict and reflect the wisdom of a new and enlightened statesmanship, the exhibition of diplomatic skill, political sagacity and self-restraint by the other side, was an achievement scarcely less notable. Both sides come through with colors flying, so to speak. Both have acquitted themselves with rare distinction, in a manner becoming nations with the history and traditions belonging to each.

De Valera's last act was characteristic of his turbulent career and temperament. In reality he helped to make ratification more feasible, more necessary, although it did not look so at the time. By stepping aside he has opened the way to the new order and tendered it recognition. Ireland now stands at the beginning of a new national era that offers full latitude for her political, social and economic development, limited only by her own resourcefulness, her own capacities, her own aspirations. With Ireland's formal entrance into the British commonwealth of nations, the British government itself undergoes a fundamental change in that it becomes republican in fact if not in form. The American people will rejoice in the settlement, which promises so much in the advancement of democratic institution throughout the world.

SAVING FOR THE BENEFIT OF ROBBERS

Housebreakers succeeded in taking $4,000 from a little tin box which a St. Louis citizen kept in a sleeping room. The loser of the money explained that he had drawn it from the bank two years ago to buy a house, but had neglected to redeposit it.

Banks to right of them. Banks to left of them. Banks in front of them. Banks behind them. Banks in the basement. Banks on the second floor. Banks everywhere. Yet, there still are persons who would rather trust their savings to a crevice in the wall or floor, a hiding place in the furnace or stove pipe, a corner of a mattress, or a little tin box, than to a strong, supervised bank.

Through persistent education financial institutions have taught the public the necessity of accumulating savings. By the same means they will some day induce doubters to understand that steel safes, ample capital, burglar protection and federal and state control make banks stronger and safer than portable tin boxes and holes in the floor and wall.

ANOTHER STEP IN THE OCEAN WATERWAY

The international joint commission representing Canada and the United States has unanimously recommended the construction of the St. Lawrence waterway which is to connect the Great Lakes with the Atlantic ocean. The American members, after long and thorough investigation, have given their unqualified approval to the project, and this in itself carries conviction that the undertaking has been considered on its merits and with careful attention to engineering, financial, commercial and practical details. The commission finds the enterprise wholly desirable and feasible.

The St. Lawrence waterway now passes from the diplomatic and preliminary stage to the legislative, for the report and recommendations of the commission will be transmitted by the state department to congress immediately. The real battle for this great economic improvement will therefore soon begin. It will be a contest between western progress and eastern reaction, between the spirit of freedom and opportunity and that of provincialism, selfishness and prejudice.

We believe there can be but one result to such an issue. Progress and enterprise will prevail. The waterway will be recognized, not in any sense as a concession to the central and northwestern states, primarily interested, but as an expression of national policy in the true interest of the country at large. As millions are counted nowadays, the cost is cheap and will be but a fraction of the enormous benefits conferred.

By the time the canal is authorized and long before it is completed its absolute necessity will be apparent; indeed, it is apparent now to those who look our problems of distribution and marketing squarely in the face and grasp the real relation of cheap and adequate transportation to the welfare of the people. When it is built and the vast interior of the United States is enabled to have direct commerce with the world at large, we shall wonder how we ever got along without it.

SOVIET'S GUARANTEE EASILY OBTAINABLE

Let us not pause to consider what a guarantee is, or how, wherein, or to what extent, it is reliable assurance. In certain circumstances a guarantee is simply a repetition of a statement with new emphasis, and the guarantee is not then based on facts or conditions, but on accentuation. This is the point of view to hold concerning guarantees of the Russian soviet.

Hon. George Tchitcherin, the soviet minister of foreign affairs, says the United States government unofficially has asked for these assurances from his country: That a stabilized government exists in Russia; that the soviets recognize private property rights, and that no terror prevails under soviet rule. Everybody knows intuitively what Tchitcherin's reply is to be. Only one answer could be expected. The soviet government will, of course, guarantee that what the United States government wants already exists. It is impossible, however, to overlook the obvious fact that the soviet is not only visionary, but incapable. And it would not be the least difficult for the soviet to give the most emphatic of guarantees. What we must have is a tangible guarantee.

For Reciprocity

The wheels turn, in Canada as elsewhere. Ten years ago the liberty party went down to defeat in a memorable campaign of which the chief issue was trade reciprocity with the United States. The initiative had come from President Taft, who staked his political fortunes on that plan for closer relations between the two countries. The plan was generally favored in the states, though western agricultural interests were dubious or hostile. The British took alarm and made an imperial issue of it. Rudyard Kipling cabled excitedly to Canada on January 1st day. "It is your own soul that you put in jeopardy this day." The Canadian refusal settled the matter.

In the election held the other day, the liberty party comes back to power, largely on this same issue of reciprocity. The Canadian people are for it now, by a big majority. Time has softened their feelings toward the United States and made them more nearly the advantages of business cooperation between two countries which, though divided politically by man, have been made one economically by nature.

There will probably be new proposals for reciprocity now, coming from Canada, since our neighbors seem to be of the opinion that two such countries grow rich from exchanging goods with each other. Our industrial and financial interests support the proposal, and the "agricultural bloc" may be expected to line up against it.—BUTTE POST (Rep.)

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writers' names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS

After the acute or feverish stage of acute poliomyelitis has passed, perhaps three weeks after the onset of the illness, the plaster casts or splints or other apparatus which may have been used to procure that most salutary aid, physiological rest, during the early stage of the paralysis, may be removed every day or two for the application of electricity. The casts or splints are discarded permanently when the physician feels that there is no further likelihood of relapses, for they serve no useful purpose after the stage of fixed or permanent paralysis has arrived. If the child is to wear an appliance or brace later, either to prevent contraction or to enable the child to walk, that is a question for the orthopedic physician.

The best results seem to be obtained from a combination of electric treatment and massage applied three or four times a week for not less than one year. This electric treatment and massage can be applied properly and safely only by the family physician or the orthopedic physician or nurses under their direction. Sometimes an intelligent mother or may learn to apply such treatment to her child with the nurse's help. It is a mistake, against which parents are warned, to entrust such treatment to any other hands. Electricity and massage may and often do work grave injury when unintelligently used.

Miraculous spectacular effects do not happen outside the curious healer seeking to make people see things which are not there. Aside from the rapid recovery of function in the affected muscle groups, which often occurs spontaneously in the first stage of the disease, any improvement under electricity and massage is very slow, taking many months, and as already mentioned, such treatment must be regularly and faithfully kept up for not less than one year in order to accomplish any good.

Patience and perseverance, therefore, are the essentials for success. Unfortunately indeed is the paralyzed child whose parents blow hither and yon, "trying" this and that treatment at the behest of friends.

Most cities have free clinics, sometimes pay clinics, where proper treatment may be had at little or no cost if the parents are unable to pay. Even private clinics can make some provision for the care of infantile paralysis cases under the direction of the health authorities. Whenever possible, a warm bath immediately preceding the massage and electric treatment is helpful.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Head Noises

I have been a victim of noises in my ears for some time. I have a noise something like Niagara Falls, and the other sound like a boiler factory turning up. You can scarcely imagine.—(J. S.)

Answer—The cause of a head noise is often not in the ear, but something systemic. Tobacco poisoning, anemia from various causes, the use of drugs, quinine, antipyria and acetanilide in pain killers and alleged grip or cold cures and headache remedies, high blood pressure from various diseases, sometimes a heart lesion. I had a real noise for several years in my case it was something like a Ford trying to pass a motorcycle in the quiet zone near a hospital. Should your noise increase enough to be annoying there would be no harm in having your doctor and, if he deems it advisable, an ear specialist, look you over.

Coffee for Children

Have tea and coffee any harmful effects on growing children? (G. P. B.)

Answer—Children under 16 should not be allowed to have tea or coffee, because these beverages, wholesome and often beneficial for adults, are too stimulating for children. Among the evil effects of tea or coffee on children are irritability, peevishness, restlessness, nightmares, bad wetting, undernutrition (underweight) and in some instances possibly impaired growth.

Exposure

What is your advice concerning the modern style of wearing low shoes or oxfords the year around, in regard to strength of the ankles as for skating, slowness for appearance, and the general hygiene of the practice. (J. F.)

Answer—Fine and dandy from ever point of view. The only consideration is the personal comfort of the individual.

Twenty-Five Years Ago

Monday, Jan. 11, 1922

Philip Hammel of Kaukauna was visiting Appleton relatives.

A son was born the night previous to Mr. and Mrs. John Krueger.

Mrs. F. LaRoue left for a visit with her parents at Columbus.

Alexander Weinfeld of Wausau was a guest in the family of Joseph Ullman.

Rudolph C. Schmidt of Seymour, formerly principal of Ryan high school, was visiting Appleton friends.

Prof. W. D. Gibson and A. G. Leffingwell were attending a Christian Endeavor convention at Oneida.

Mrs. William Tietz was called to Ishpeming by the serious illness of a relative.

Maurice Lang entertained a group of friends in honor of his birthday anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Kenyon were about to leave for Biloxi, Miss., where they were to spend the remainder of the winter.

The new vested choir of 24 boys made its appearance at the Episcopal church the day previous.

Miss Arnes Roschek and John McGinniss were married at St. Joseph church.

The problem as to whether a horse could move a weight of 100 pounds at the end of a 500-foot rope was tested out by the firemen and it was found that the animal walked away with it easily.

The adjourned November term of Circuit court was resumed at the courthouse.

No Permanent Job for Marines

Continued use of the marines as mail guards is stirring up opposition in Congress and out. The longer the marines are employed in this way the stronger the opposition will become.

Many of the objections raised are not so sound. The strongest is that the marines are marines and should be kept available for their regular service. When a command is scattered it loses its very things that distinguish the marines—esprit de corps and perfect preparation for duty.

In the emergency it was wise to employ the marines. But the post office should lose no time in organizing a guard force to do the work the marines are now doing. In addition to the regular inspection service, a guard organization modeled on the general lines of the American Northwest Mounted Police ought to do the work even better than the marines.

It is always hard to put a soldier on a civilian job. Normally the soldier is under the discipline of officers chosen with a regard for their good judgment. The soldier from this disciplined leadership and he is likely to fall when judgment is needed.—NEW YORK EVENING WORLD (Dem.)

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

Our "Mandates" Over Haiti

Because, as the CHARLESTON (W. Va.) MAIL (Ind. Rep.) says, "the problem of Haiti is a problem of the American people," (there is much interest in the report of a Senate investigating committee, headed by Medill Tamm, dealing with what the PHILADELPHIA BULLETIN (Ind. Rep.) styles our "Monroe Doctrine mandate." To a number of Democratic papers the report is particularly gratifying in view of the partisan fire that followed charges of atrocities by the marines during the former administration. Expressing this sentiment the MOBILE REGISTER (Dem.) notes that "although the murmurings of alleged misrule in Haiti began during the Democratic administration, the conduct of American officials and soldiers has been commended by a Republican investigating committee, so there is double reason why Americans should get their minds at rest concerning the situation." Since the Columbus (O.) DISPATCH (Ind.) adds, the committee "is united in the opinion that the occupation has been a great benefit to the island and that withdrawal at the present time would be disastrous."

Pleased with this "vindication of the Wilson administration" former Secretary of the Navy Daniels' paper, the RALPH NEWS AND OBSERVER (Reno, Nev.) says that "it is a regrettable necessity that compelled the sending of marines into Haiti." The facts in the case, as the DETROIT FREE PRESS (Ind.) chronicles them, "are that in 1914 Haiti was, as it has frequently been before, in a state bordering on anarchy. The people had been for over a paper constitution for more than a century, but for most of that time they have been subjects of one military dictator after another."

.....Corrupt tyranny was the general condition; democracy was a mere shadow." Banditry masquerading as revolution, the WILKES BARRE, (Pa.) RECORD (Rep.) adds, "had brought desolation to the people and confusion in all government affairs." Further, the SALT CITY TRIBUNE (Ind.) continues, the foreign relations of the island "were so snarled that serious complications were threatened," and "it was to avert the direful consequences looming above the horizon that America took control."

More particularly, the MANCHESTER UNION (Ind. Rep.) points out, "one of the chief reasons was preparing to challenge our Monroe Doctrine right at this Haitian point, on the basis of the Haitian debt," and, the TOLEDO BLADE (Ind. Rep.) says, "America had the choice of stepping in as the policeman or letting some other nation do it." So "for the sake of the Monroe Doctrine, a principle more useful to Latin America than to ourselves, we assumed the job."

How successfully the job has been carried through is attested by the Senate Committee's report. In the several years that Haiti has been controlled by American military and naval forces, which the SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE (Ind.) says, "maintain order, conveniences and apply them to their proper purposes." Improvements have been made in the character of the government which are commented upon by many writers. "Law has been carried into the mountains," observes the SEATTLE TIMES (Ind.); "the bands that have been broken up or so chastised that they are no longer to be considered a menace to the peace of the country." Roads have been built and schools established. Further, the CHARLESTON MAIL (Ind. Rep.) adds, "sanitary work has cleaned up the once filthy coast towns," and "peace and order have been established everywhere in Haiti."

However, "it would be a good story indeed," to the JOHNSTON DEMOCRAT (Dem.), "if the occupation had resulted in nothing more than, as the ITHACA JOURNAL NEWS (Ind.) remarks, "whether any group of people, white or black, can derive permanent advantage from a control exercised by an outside power is another matter." We have also established order in Central America to a large extent, the RENO (GAETTE) (Rep.) points out, "but when we have collected the money from the Haitians and Santo Dominicans and have paid it over to the European bankers, the United States must step out—there is no reason why New York banks should expect the taxpayers of the United States to bear the expense of protecting investments entered into with a full knowledge of the risks involved." The PROVIDENCE TRIBUNE (Ind. Rep.) suspects that "notwithstanding what we have done for them," the Haitians, "if the wishes of the majority could be ascertained, would prefer to rule themselves."

But getting out of Haiti, for the present or any discernible future, is not on the program of the Senate committee. Rather it declares that "there can be no abrogation of the treaty and at this time no diminution of the small force of marines." The recommendation of the committee, the INDIANAPOLIS NEWS (Ind.) gives it, is that "a high commissioner be appointed, who shall be the special representative of the President and have the powers of an envoy extraordinary to whom both the treaty officials and the marine officers should look for guidance."

Continuing the CHICAGO TRIBUNE (Ind. Rep.) thinks "will support their decision," that the United States remain in control. At the same time the SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN (Ind.) hopes that further advice of the committee will be heeded, when it holds that "officers of the marine corps who are to be sent to Haiti should be selected not only because of their ability to command troops, but also to command them in Haiti and among the Haitian people." Certainly "the least we can do in justice," the REPUBLICAN asserts, "is to make the interference as little irksome as possible," and "if we are to remain there" the ROCHESTER TIMES-UNION (Ind.) insists that "some better form of supervision and inspection will be required," for "unchecked military rule, especially in a tropical country, is certain to develop abuse of authority."

The Genial Art of Smuggling

London—"Dodging the customs officers" is a fascinating game at which almost every traveller plays, or wishes he had nerve enough to try, says a British customs official, in an interesting article in the LONDON DISPATCH, in which not only the devices of the amateur but the machinations of the professional smuggler are revealed. Smuggling has increased to an amazing extent within the past year, he says; and so have the difficulties of detection. The professional smuggler who is always coming and going is readily spotted by the revenue men, but the occasional trickster is exceedingly troublesome.

"People who in the ordinary way are models of rectitude; if you suggested breaking any other law of the land, they would be highly indignant; rich travelers who have no need or reason to cheat the Government of a few dollars—all these take an almost childish delight in 'doing the Customs,'" says the official. "They regard it as an achievement; they retail the facts with no little satisfaction in their even tell one another the best way to get their 'stuff' through without paying the legal dues."

"Such people are hard to detect and when under cover and dutiable goods are discovered in their baggage they invariably plead ignorance of the 'bothering red-tape business.' But they pay up with good grace. Some even smile broadly and say, 'Well, officer, with the import duties what they are it is almost worth a few years in jail, what?'"

"Recently we caught a perfect paragon of a vacationist. He spent a fortnight's holiday regularly on the Continent every three months and always returned with a good stock of cigars, ten or a dozen boxes. He paid all dues and taxes without the slightest demur, but something excited suspicions and one day he was caught. I broke open one of his cigars. Inside the leaf tobacco was a phial of pure cocaine. At the street selling price I estimated that each cigar contained about $125 worth of the raw drug, so that in those ten innocent looking boxes on which the astute passenger had paid tobacco duty was over $60,000 worth of the most sought after drug in Europe."

"Cocaine is practiced to an ever-increasing extent, and I find the Chinese are the worst offenders. Oriental seamen come ashore night after night with from three to five ounces of it concealed in their tobacco pouches, clothing, boots, even under false hair. Morphine and its cousin opium are smuggled in the same way. I have confiscated pounds of cocaine concealed in bread, which they take ashore to their own lodgings. We have found it in the handles of knives, dummy watches, walking sticks, hollow-backed books, binoculars, and one occasion I took 20 phials of it from a bottle of wine."

Once a "casualty" was being taken out of the docks one day, a stranger, he had fallen down one of the dry docks and certainly seemed to be seriously injured. Unluckily for him, the foreman of that particular dock happened to be at the gates when he was being taken through to the hospital. "We had no accident at that dock," he said in some surprise. John Chinaman, who promptly called twenty stretcher and other person was found eleven pounds in weight of assorted drugs and a big lump of ambergris under the blankets were six platinum watches.

"Unset precious stones, because of their tiny bulk, offer great attractions to smugglers. One woman had a very small ring which she pushed a quill into a piece of toilet tissue and carried it with the core inside the quill, packed the soap with uncut diamonds and replaced the core. After washing with it a few times the little mark was entirely obliterated.

"The swallowing of pearls and similar gems went completely out of fashion with the introduction of X-ray apparatus at the docks; but I confess that even I received a shock when a large stone was discovered in a man's leg. He had pressed a safety razor blade into his calf, inserted the stone—a 102 carat diamond—bound up the cut and allowed it to heal. The fact that he was a known illicit diamond buyer returning from Africa had made him an object of suspicion, hence the X-ray search."

Women Smoking Less

An informal census of the habits of the Oxford University woman undergraduate reveals the interesting fact that, roughly speaking, only one in five smokes, and that in the twenty per cent of smokers very few make a habit of the cigarette, says a writer in the LONDON MAIL. They smoke one or two now and then, as a social accomplishment rather than a pleasant amusement.

The undergraduate who invites her friends and acquaintances to lunch at 1 o'clock expects to be asked to provide cigarettes. It is no slur on hospitality not to offer a smoke.

"Without a doubt smoking is on the decline in Oxford. One reason may be that the modern undergraduate goes to Oxford to prepare for a profession and not for the most part rich. But, with full allowance for such local influences, the census strengthens the general opinion that women smoke less and that the fashion is gradually waning in England as in many other countries."

"The growing belief that smoking is bad for the complexion may be helping to root the fashion."

Here are Two Rings

They both shine—both are the same size—both are adornment—but one is a diamond—the other paste—which would you buy?

We hope we are putting it strong enough—the situation needs it. Gold bricks and Golden bargains in men's suits and coats are looking alike this Winter and the only way to separate the sheep from the goats is in the open field of comparison.

Before you buy a single dollar's worth of clothing—try on these garments at $30. to $50.

Before you buy try on any other make at the same price and we'll be satisfied if you are!

French Negro Wins Prize

Paris—The Goncourt prize for literature was awarded this year to a negro from Martinique named M. Rene Maran, for his book "Batouala" and the PARIS JOURNAL makes this comment on the significant event. "Some years ago before the war, in a little literary magazine called the Belfroi, some most delicate and touching verses appeared with the signature of a new-comer, M. Rene Maran. They were arranged afterwards in two volumes but passed almost unnoticed, although they showed unusual poetic temperament."

"A little later we were very surprised to hear that a black man was the author of them. He was born in Martinique, and is at the present time colonial official in Africa. He is neither a mulatto nor other admixture, but is just a black as can be. He is thirty-four years old, has the usual fuzzy hair and prominent lips, a full face and his robust neck seems far from being at ease in a European collar. He wears an eyeglass, behind which black eyes gaze at you and scrutinize you with extraordinary intensity. One feels that he is trying to understand things and people over here and that later on he will think deeply over yonder in the equatorial lands of all the sights he saw in France."

"Indeed, he is making it his mission to liberate the men of his race from prejudices and injustices of which they are victims. Ever since he was quite young his one idea is to hunt Batouala, he killed mysteriously—'We greet today M. Rene Maran as the first black writer.'"

THE QUESTION BOX

(Any reader can get the answer to any question by writing The Appleton Post-Crescent Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C. This offer applies strictly to information. The Bureau cannot give advice on legal, medicinal, and financial matters. It does not attempt to settle domestic troubles, nor to undertake exhaustive research on any subject. Write your question plainly and briefly. Give full name and address and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. All replies are sent direct to the inquirer.)

Q. How large is a township? G. I. M.

Gravelling, grading, and paving will be done.

Q. How much cotton was grown last year? C. E. B.

A. The Department of Agriculture says that the world's cotton crop for 1921 is estimated at 15,593,000 bales. This is the smallest crop in 20 years, and is a falling off of 5,000,000 bales from last year.

Q. What is the origin of the bulldog? W. S. C.

A. Bull baiting, a sport once popular in England but now declared illegal, consisted in attacking bulls with dogs especially trained for that purpose. The bulldog seems to have been developed for this sport from a short-eared mastiff called "faunt."

Q. What was the first important battle of the Civil War? N. A.

A. The first Battle of Bull Run is considered the first important battle of that war. It was fought on Sunday, July 21, 1861, and resulted in a victory for the Confederates.

Q. Is cambric linen or cotton? A. C. D.

A. This name, derived from Cambrai, France, where the material was made, was given to the finest and thinnest of plain woven linen fabrics. The term is now applied to cloth made from cotton with the fibre twisted very hard in imitation of linen cambric.

Q. How much wool does it take to make a pair of blankets? A. A.

A. It takes about six pounds of clean wool or nine pounds of unwashed wool as it comes from the sheep to make the average double blanket.

Q. Why are the boots of a cavalry man turned backward when attached to the saddle of his horse in the funeral procession? E. N. T.

A. This custom has come to us from other countries and the significance of it is that the owner "has out of his march."

LACK OF FUNDS PUTS DAMPER ON SCOUT WORK

Formation of a budget for Appleton Boy Scout organization for this year will occur Monday night at a meeting of the scout finance committee in the scout office. Members of the committee are Frank Marshall, Eben Harwood, E. B. Sager, Louis Marshall and H. L. Davis.

Cutting expenses in half will be the knottiest problem the committee will have to face. Lack of funds in the past has been a handicap to the organization but this year it will be necessary to reduce the budget even more in order to keep the organization going.

Bill Bronson has led Virginia Tremont into the Clearwater of northern Canada to find her fiancé, Harold Lounsbury, who vanished there six years previously. Disaster separates them from the rest of their party. Kenly Lounsbury, Virginia's fiancé's uncle, and Vesper, Bronson's cook, the man and girl are snowed in an ill-fitting cabin beyond Grizzly river. Bill seeks his murdered father's lost gold mine. One day he finds Harold, who has turned squaw man, and takes him to Virginia.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

Virginia turned back to her new-found lover.

She was a little frightened by the expression on his face. His eyes were glowing, the color had risen in his cheeks, he was curiously eager and breathless.

"Before he comes," he urged. "We've been apart so long—"

His hand reached out and seized hers. He drew her toward him. She didn't resist; she felt a deep self-annoyance that she didn't crave his kiss. He crushed her to him, and his kiss was greedy.

She struggled from his arms and she looked at her in startled amazement. In fact, she was amazed at herself. That first night Bill and Harold made bunk on the floor of the cabin, but such an arrangement could only be temporary.

They might be imprisoned for weeks to come. Bill solved the problem with a single suggestion.

They would build a small cabin for the two men to sleep in. Many times he had erected such a structure by his own efforts; the two of them could push it up in a few hours' work.

"I'm really not much good at cabin building," Harold protested. "But I don't see why Bill shouldn't go to work at it. I suppose you hired him for all camp work."

For an instant Virginia stared at him in utter wonder, and then a swift look of grave displeasure came into her face.

"You forgot, Harold, that it was Bill that brought you back. The thirty days he was hired for were gone long ago." But she softened at once. "It's your duty to help him, and I'll help him, too, if I can."

In the next few days Bill mostly left the two together, trying to find his consolation in the wild life of the forest world outside the cabin. Harold had taken advantage of his absence and had made good progress. Virginia's period of adjustment to him was almost complete.

She did not, however, go frequently into his arms. Somewhat, an embarrassment, a sense of inappropriateness and unrest always assailed her when he tried to claim the caresses that he felt were his due.

"Not now, Harold," she would tell him. "Not until we're established again—at home."

Finally his habits and his actions did not quite meet with her approval. The first of these was only a little thing—a failure to keep shaved.

The stubble matted and grew on his lips and jaws. Bill, in contrast, shaved with greatest care every evening.

A more important point was his avoidance of his proper share of Bill's daily toil.

There was a little explosion, one afternoon, when he ventured to advise her in regard to her relations with Bill.

Harold spoke tolerantly, patronizingly. "Those fellows are apt to take advantage of any familiarity. They're all right if you keep 'em in their place—but they're mighty likely to break loose from it any minute. I'm sorry you ever let him call you Virginia."

Virginia's eyes blazed.

"Listen, Harold," she exclaimed. "I don't care to hear any more such talk as that. I don't need or want any such warnings. I don't care what you think of Bill—for that matter, you can be sure that Bill doesn't care at all either—but I'll ask you to keep your thoughts to yourself. Oh, if you only knew—how good, how strong, how true he has been—how tender he has been to me—"

Harold was torn with jealous rage, and in his fury and malice he made the worst mistake of all. "I hope he hasn't been too tender," he suggested, viciously.

The girl answered only with her eyes; but her answer was unmistakable. Harold muttered something unintelligible, half an apology, half an excuse. Then he turned his back and stalked out of the cabin.

XII

The addition of Harold to their number did not influence, for long, Virginia's old relations with Bill. They were comrades as ever; they talked and chatted around the little stove in the hushed nights; they played their favorite melodies on the battered phonograph, and they took the same joyous, exciting expeditions into the wild.

One morning Bill called her early.

"We're face to face with a new problem," he announced. "The park came by last night—the wolf pack. I didn't hear them at all. And they got away with the big moose hum, hanging on the spruce."

"Then we're out of meat!"

"All except the little piece outside the door. We've been going through it pretty fast."

Bill spoke true. Their meat consumption had practically doubled since Harold had come.

"But if you care to," Bill went on, "we can dash out and see if we can pick up a young caribou or a left-over moose."

She dressed, and at breakfast their exultation over their trip grew painful to Harold's ears. He announced his intention of going along.

Bill took rather a new course today. He bent his steps toward a stream that he called Creek Despair—named for the fact that he had once held high hopes of finding his lost mine along its waters, only to meet an utter and hopeless failure.

After proceeding a long distance Bill glanced back in warning and pointed to an entrancing wilderness picture, a hundred yards in front.

In a little glade and framed by the forest stood a large bull caribou, flashing and incredibly vivid against the snow.

Incidentally he made a first-class target—one that it seemed impossible to miss.

"I'll take him," Harold shouted.

"Let me take him,"

In a flash Harold realized that here was his opportunity; in one stroke, one easy shot, he could focus Virginia's admiration upon himself.

But it was not the way of sportsmen, wandering in file in mountain trails, to clamor for the first shot at game. Whatever is said is usually in solicitation to a companion to shoot; and Virginia felt oddly embarrassed.

Harold's gun leaped to his shoulder. The target looked too big to miss, but his bullet flung up the snow behind the animal.

The caribou's powerful limbs pushed out in a mighty leap. Frenzied, Harold shot again; but his nerve was broken and his self-control blown to the four winds. The animal had gained the shelter of the thickets by now.

"My sights are off," Harold shouted. "They didn't shoot within three feet of where I aimed. Damn such a gun."

"I think we'd better look for something else," said Bill drily.

"Then I want you to carry my gun awhile, and let me take your gun all ready, and here's a handful of extra shells. You ought to be willing to do that, at least."

"BILL'S KEEN EYES SAW THE BEAR FIRST."

Harold had forgotten that this man was not his personal guide, subject to his every wish. He held out gun and shells, and smiling, Bill received them, giving his own weapon in exchange.

But Harold's miss had not been his greatest sin. The omission that followed was by all the codes of the hunting trails unpardonable. He supposed that he had reloaded his rifle magazine with shells before he put it in Bill's hands. In his confusion and anger, he had forgotten to do so; and the only load that the gun contained was that in the barrel, thrown in automatically when the last empty shell was ejected.

XIII

Several seasons before there had been a fatality on the hillside above Creek Despair. An ancient spruce tree had languished, withered and died from sheer old age.

On the day that the three hunters emerged on their snowshoes in search of meat for their depletedarder, the wind pressed gently against it. Because its trunk was rotted away it swayed and fell heavily.

The falling tree had made a frightful crash just over the head of a great grizzly, his-mating for the winter, and even the deep snow in which he lay was abruptly dissolved.

He sprang up, ready to fight.

His little, fierce eyes turned and smoldering with wrath, he grunted deep in his throat, and he pushed out savagely through the cavern maw. It was only a step farther through the spruce thicket into the sunlight.

Three hunters, two abreast and one behind, came rushing through the little pass where the creek flowed. The grizzly recognized them in an instant as his hereditary foes.

His ears had back, and he uttered a deep growl.

As he stepped, his forefeet swung out, giving to his carriage an arrogant and a swagger that would have been amusing if it hadn't been terrible. His wicked teeth gleamed white in foam, and the hair stood stiff at his shoulders.

Bill's keen eyes saw the bear first.

It was the last sight in the world that Bill had expected.

There was no waiting this time to offer the sporting opportunity to Harold.

Virginia was not aware of a lapse of time between the instant that Bill caught sight of the bear and that in which his gun came leaping to his shoulder.

He had full confidence in the hard-hitting vicious bullet in Harold's thirty-caliber, and most of all he relied on the four reserve shots that he supposed lay in the rifle magazine.

The grizzly dies hard, he felt that all four of them would be needed to arrest the charge that would likely follow his first shot.

He aimed for the great shoulder, the region of the lungs and heart.

MEET IN MADISON TO PLAN MARKING OF HISTORIC SITES

State Committee Will Lay Concrete Plans at Conference January 24

Special to The Post-Crescent
Madison—Concrete plans for the relocation, marking, and preservation of the historic landmarks of the Indian and pioneer days of Wisconsin will be made here this month.

The first general meeting of the landmarks committee of the Wisconsin State Historical society is called for Tuesday, January 24, by John Hazelwood, general chairman of the committee, and will be held in the state capitol building here.

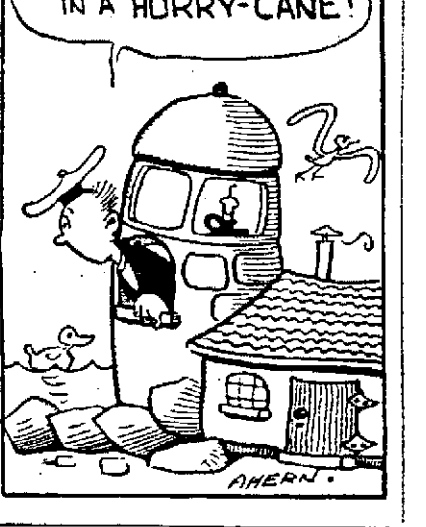

A large assemblage of Wisconsin history and archeology experts is expected to make up the one-day program. Addresses will be made by Dr. George L. Collie, noted archeologist of Beloit, Dr. S. A. Barrett, of Milwaukee public museum, who will talk on the prehistoric remains of the ancient city of Aztlan, in Jefferson Co., Wis., George A. West, Milwaukee student of Indian lore; C. E. Brown, curator of the state historical museum at Madison, and Halvor Skavlem, of Janesville, who claims to have rediscovered the lost art of making Indian arrowheads.

French Dictation On Length Of Skirts Is Rejected In America

American Girls Continue to Show Their Nether Charms in Spite of Long Skirt Edict by French Modistes.

New York.—American women have definitely rejected French dictation on the length of their skirts. Months ago Paris modistes declared that the long skirt was to be the coming vogue for women. American designers were ready to agree with them. In fact they will tell you now that the longer hem is here. Perhaps—but where?

Not on Fifth Avenue, not on Broad way; not on Hester street; nor Main street, Gopher Prairie!

At the first announcement from Paris of the long skirt, magazines of fashion were filled with illustrations of long skirted mannequins; display windows immediately ignored the tapering calves of waxed models, cloth makers sat back in swivel chairs and chuckled at the thought. And what happened?

The flapper still flaps about in knee length skirt and hose of gauze, clinging to them because she knows in summing up her charms that legs are not least. The athletic girl in flat heels and woolen hose strides around in the freedom of her short, flaring skirt. And the matron whose years recall the germ-laden hems of yesterday awaits for someone with a less shapely ankle to hasten the style. In these days when a long skirt might suggest a physical defect, it is a brave woman who will attempt it.

Heretofore Paris has been a bright and shimmering symbol of style and chic. When Paris designers said short skirts, short hair, short corsets and short skirts, we wasted no time in "outshouting" them. But when they start lengthening, in the venaecular of the dough boy, we are not so "toot sweet."

White gloves are being supplanted by taupe and grays and even darker shades for dress wear.

The popular side panel effect for skirts can be to the utmost advantage on afternoon and evening gowns by binding long strings of jet or pearl beads from the side waist line to the hem of the gown.

It is pleasing to see so many women wearing their hair in the real nature

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED

You will not, if you are a visitor, receive calls from men friends without asking your hostess to be present. You will never go into the vestibule to greet a gentleman caller. You will not help a man on with his overcoat, struggle as he may.

given shades lately. Henna and walnut stains to say nothing of peroxide, seem to have faded away. Even the younger faces have, now and then, a streak of gray surrounding their brows.

In speaking of coiffures, where, oh where, are the little cars which were predicted to show themselves this season?

Winter finds the ever popular coat suit a trifle longer in coat length than the past few seasons. "Marron," or chestnut brown, seems to be the prevailing shade for suits and lends itself admirably to fur trimmings such as sable and kolinsky.

The latest shade used for undergarments comes from Paris and is called rose beige. It has more of a flesh tone than what formerly we termed "flesh" as the introduction of tan might suggest.

THIS GIRL IS BOSS OF PUMPING CREW

Stockport, O.—Miss Thelma Estelle Rees, 21, is an expert in a vocation which few, if any other, women have chosen.

She pumps an oil lease comprising 17 wells in the vicinity of Stockport—and she does her job well.

Miss Rees first went the rounds with her father, J. R. Rees, "for fun." Then he became crippled with rheumatism, and she just naturally took charge of things.

Besides the oil pumping work, Miss Rees milks the cows, carries the horses and is main boss around the Rees farm.

NAMES, NEEDS OF WOMEN

MRS. LYDIA HOYT

By Alice Rohe

New York.—Seven Cardinal Thoughts for the Modern Woman.

I asked Mrs. Lydia Hoyt, the theater world as Julia Hoyt—is a most modern woman—a superlative woman.

She has everything to make of her a self-indulgent, social parasite—superlative beauty, superlative social position, wealth—yet in her dressing room at the Astor theater, where she is appearing with William Faversham in "The Squaw Man," she talked with real seriousness and understanding.

HER CARDINAL THOUGHTS

And she gave me the Seven Cardinal Thoughts.

1. "The modern woman must have work and a big interest of her own regardless of her social position. 2. 'Nothing in the world counts for happiness like the realization of accomplishment."

3. "Every healthy woman should realize maternity, not merely as a duty to her marriage tie but to her self-fulfillment. I have had two children, but lost them both."

4. "A mother who brings up a big family of fine children in a personal way has one of the greatest of careers. But a rich woman who has all the material cares lifted from her shoulders still has time for other activities."

5. "The modern woman by refusing to recognize them is doing more to break down artificial social barriers than any other force today."

6. "You hear a lot about the snobishness of the 'socially elect' toward the working classes—let me tell you—the snobbery of the working class toward the 'socially elect' is just as strong I know!"

7. "Social position should not handicap a woman any more than wealth should. But the law works both ways, the poor and the rich suffer equally in being restricted in self-expression."

Mrs. Hoyt, whose beauty over the footlights is not even so dazzling as at closer range, stood, a tall, well, exquisitely modeled young woman of perfect lines, clad in a silver crystal gown of her own design.

"When I was 16," she said, "I began studying for the stage, but my parents disapproved. I have done amateur acting always. Then you know recently I went into the movies—but the legitimate drama is my chosen field."

"I am an ardent suffragist. I worked hard, speaking frequently for equal suffrage. I am for everything that helps women toward constructive self-expression. The stage is one of our greatest mediums of constructiveness."

Young Woman Called Queen Of Porpoises

Dubuque, Ia.—Queen of Porpoises! She is Dorothy Hoag, 20-year-old member of the American Red Cross saving corps.

The honor was bestowed upon her by the University of Iowa life saving corps. And lest this honor pass lightly by, it is well to mention that the Porpoise club is an exclusive men's organization. The membership is open only to the most graceful and the best swimmers in the Red Cross outfit.

Miss Dorothy is to preside at the annual aquatic meet to be held in Iowa City at the University of Iowa.

Like swimming? She says it's the best sport of all.

Her dad, Dr. W. Hoag, has had a heap to do with her water ability, for back in her teens, Dorothy had a fully equipped gymnasium in her own home. And father used to tip daughter off to all the rudiments of this, that and the other stroke.

Then, in college, C. E. Daubert, swimming instructor, carried on.

Mother Hoag also deserves credit. She is president of the Dubuque Women's Red Cross life saving corps and one of the crack swimmers of the outfit.

In the Hoag family it's a case of like father and mother—like daughter. Only daughter seems to have the edge.

BUDDHISTS HAVE "Y. M. C. A." NOW

Oriental Religious Order Follows Christian Ideas Among Young Men

Tokio.—If Kipling had it all to do over again he might have to revise his line about "East is East and West is West and never the twain shall meet."

They're meeting so much these days that sometimes they're pretty well mixed.

For example, one of the oldest religions of the East is all spruced up in a nifty new garb that asks no odds of its western model.

The Buddhists have gone in to the "Y" business. Theirs is a "Y. M. B. A."—Young Men's Buddhist Association—going good too. It's putting over the self-same attractions and advantages the "other Y" offered, with a background of Buddhism in lieu of Christianity.

The backers of this young Buddhist movement, operated upon exactly the same basis that Japan has used so often and so successfully in adapting to her own needs and conditions the methods of the Occident.

LEARN A WORD EVERY DAY

Today's word is DASTARD. It's pronounced—with accent on the first syllable.

It means—a coward, one who shrinks from danger. It comes from—Icelandic 'daestr,' exhausted.

Companion words—dastardly, das tardiness. It's used like this—"The man who will not aid a woman in danger is a dastard."

Baked Beans With Meat

BAKED LIMA BEANS WITH PORK

One and one-half cups dried lima beans, ¼ pound salt pork, 1 teaspoon mustard, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 cups canned tomatoes, 4 tablespoons molasses, 1 onion.

Wash beans well. Let stand over night in cold water to more than cover. Rinse and put in to cook in cold water with 18 teaspoon soda. When the water boils drain the beans and rinse in cold water. Put in 2 quarts boiling water and boil sixty minutes, adding water as necessary. Scrape and wash pork and boil sixty minutes.

Drain beans and pork. Put onion in the bottom of a baking dish without slicing. Add pork which has been deeply scored and cover with beans. Mix molasses, pepper, mustard and tomatoes, bring to the boiling point and pour over beans. Cover and bake an hour in a slow oven. Remove cover, increase heat and pull pork to the top of the baking dish. Bake an hour longer, browning the top.

This dish is almost a full meal in itself. A green salad and fruit dessert should furnish the minerals for a dinner with chili con carne. Red kidney beans dried or canned or dried lima beans may be used instead of the original Mexican bean.

Six onions, 1 tablespoon bacon fat, 1 pound round steak (ground), 3 cups tomatoes, 2 cups cooked beans, ¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper, 2 quarts water.

Melt bacon fat. Add onions sliced and fry slowly to a pale straw color. Add meat and brown quickly. The beans should be soaked over night and parboiled in soda water if dried beans are used.

Put beans, tomatoes and water in kettle and bring to the boiling point. Add pepper, meat and onions and cook until the mixture thickens. If canned beans are used stir 3 table-spoons of flour in to the meat and

Polly and Paul--and Paris

Chapter 6—"You are My World"

BY ZOE BECKLEY

Begin Here Today

The arrival of Paul Dawson in a little town of the middle west brought love into the life of Polly. The night Paul proposed, he announced that his firm had made him head of their Paris agency. The marriage was hastened and within two weeks the honeymoon couple were sailing for France.

Go on With the Story

Polly and her husband leaned upon the rail as the great ship, whistle a-scream, slowly moved out from the pier. Grumpy dockhands shouted, hung ropes and ran to and fro. Half a dozen lugs, their blunt noses pressed against the line's sides, pushed and strained noisily to get her into midstream, headed toward the sea.

The little bride held tightly her man's arm. Her eyes swept the vanishing pier where not one familiar face smiled her a good-by. She thought of her wedding four days ago in the pretty church at Lester Falls. Of her girl friends, fussing ecstatically about her, "envying her the supper-fortune of such a husband and such a honeymoon!" Of Aunt Sue, stern to the last, and full of warnings about "that wicked Paris."

the way they look at things and understand things. They know how to live, believe me! And everything's so beautiful—the great open spaces, the parks and gardens and boulevards and palaces. And the shops—wow! Maybe I better not let you see the shops, Pollykins."

"Are the women really so wonderfully dressed—better than in New York?"

"Well—different, somehow. More are, or something. Why, they live to be beautiful and dress, and wear jewels and laugh and love, and be charming. At least I suppose the gaiety's come back to Paris. I haven't seen it since the year I left college."

Polly pressed her cheek against his sleeve. How tremendous the world was—and how unknown! How little was she and Lester Falls and the things she knew compared to the things Paul knew!

"But you love your little old plain-Jane from the prairies, even if she isn't a—Parisite?"

Paul bent his head with his dear boyish laugh and put his lips close to her ear.

"Love you, Mousie? You are my world—I can't tell you here how I love you, the people might get personal. Come on down and see our cabin—I'll tell you there."

The momentary sense of strangeness and loneliness passed. Joyously she followed Paul down the gangway as he hunted out their number. A woman stepped from a room three or four doors away, glanced curiously at Paul, then came toward them smilingly, holding out her hand.

NEED LEADERS FOR GIRLS' ACTIVITIES

Two Committees of Men and Women Will be Named to Support Work

Girl Scout and Campfire girl activities in Appleton are taking on such proportions under the direction of the recreation department of Appleton Women's club that both groups need assistance from outsiders. Consequently two committees of men and women in Appleton who are interested in either movement will be selected some time next week to further the work of the girls in these two national organizations.

The membership of each committee will consist of 12 or more men and women who will agree to encourage leaders in taking charge of groups, and who will assist in procuring competent people to give the various examinations which the girls take for their merit work. They will also assist with social affairs for both or either of the organizations. Appointments to these committees have not yet been made and any men and women who are interested in the promotion of this work for girls are asked to notify the Appleton Women's club. Miss Emily Adams has charge of organizing the scout committee while Miss Constance Johnson has charge of the committee for campfires.

INTERLAKE TEAM WINS TWO GAMES ON WEEKEND TRIP

Wisconsin Rapids Team is Victim in Spectacular Game on Saturday

The Interlake Pulp and Paper company basketball team returned victorious after playing two weekend games at Biron, defeating the Biron division team of the Consolidated Waterpower and Paper company, 35 to 12, Friday evening and winning from the powerful Wisconsin Rapids division team 19 to 18, in a thrilling contest Saturday evening. Both games were played on the Biron floor.

The initial game of the trip with Biron as the opposition was featured by many field goals from all angles of the floor. Rushon started for the local team netting nine field goals and one free throw. Day followed with five baskets and two free throws. The local quint had its five man defense working to perfection. Gardner and Kossler played well at the guard positions.

Spectacular Shot.
The final game Saturday evening from the Wisconsin Rapids division five in which the locals, with the score 17 to 18 against them in the last eight seconds of play dropped in a finger from three-quarter of the length of the floor and winning by a one point margin was something that the Wisconsin Rapids men will long remember. The Rapids five had four men on their lineup who were regulars on the Tri-City five which has a reputation as being a powerful professional aggregation. Stark formerly of the Appleton professional team played a good game for the locals. The two weekend victories puts the local team on top with quite a tidy margin in the Consolidated Waterpower and Paper company basketball league race.

The locals played without the services of Rock and Gregory, regular guard and center, who are out of the game because of injuries.

Mays' Delivery Is Puzzler

By Billy Evans

How can he pitch that way?

I heard that query scores of times during the first game of the 1921 world series.

Carl Mays was doing the pitching for the Yankees. Many of those present were watching Mays pitch for the first time. They were puzzled and astonished by his unusual style of delivery.

If the fans, watching the game, are puzzled as to how Mays pitches it is very easy to imagine how disconcerting his style is to the batter. His peculiar delivery puzzled the Giants. That was my one big reason in doing that he had a chance to win three games in the series.

Mays unquestionably has the most unique style of any pitcher in the game. He is an underhand pitcher almost exclusively. Occasionally he mixes in a sidearm curve. He throws just four such balls in the three games he worked against the Giants. Mays starts his delivery well below the knee. The lower he can get the more effective the ball. That is why Mays has to pay more attention to his waist line than the rest of the twirlers. Any extra weight around the waist makes it more difficult for Mays to get down low and thereby takes some of the "zip" off the ball.

Critics have labeled Mays delivery the "subway ball." It has been well named, because it certainly starts from down below.

What makes the ball so effective? That is another question that is put to me hundreds of times every year. There are a number of reasons why Mays is a hard man to hit. I will explain a few of them.

Perhaps the very best reason for the effectiveness of Mays' delivery is that it is entirely different. There is no other pitcher in either major league that uses a style that is at all similar. Batters face over-hand and sidearm pitching constantly, but there is only one Mays and one underhand delivery.

When Mays pitches the batter is looking at a style that is the decided exception. For that reason it is puzzling. In addition Mays is blessed with fine control and is generally able to keep the ball where he desires it. The underhand ball must be kept low to be effective. Mays' ability to keep pitching at the knee is really uncanny. In the first game of the world series, he threw only three balls above the waist line. In the second game he threw a ball over the plate and got a toe hold. The fact that his underhand ball acts differently adds much to his effectiveness. One style keeps raising slightly and curves out, the other style breaks down much after the manner of the spitball.

Today's Sport Angle

By Billy Evans

The forward pass in football is certain to receive much consideration from the rule makers when they meet to discuss the new angles presented by the 1921 season.

Harvard has already come to the front with a suggestion that the forward pass be eliminated during the final five minutes of play.

In all probability the defeat suffered by Harvard from Princeton is the base of their contention.

It will be remembered that a long forward pass, strictly to Gilroy, followed by a 50-yard run by the latter player, produced the touchdown that caused a Crimson defeat.

Personally we don't like the Harvard idea. If the forward pass is permissible during the first three periods, there is no good reason why it should not continue in good form throughout the final quarter.

Of course it is in the last few minutes of play that a beaten team takes long chances with the pass. If a touchdown means a chance to win or tie the game, the losing team very logically uses nothing but forward passes, in a hope one of them might be successful.

There is always a chance that such a pass will be intercepted. However, that is the only chance the losing team is taking.

Unquestionably the forward pass is being overplayed. However, the public likes the play, and for that reason it has become an integral part of the game.

The thing to do is to place some limitations on the pass that will protect the defending team to a greater extent than merely the loss of a down when the pass is completed.

Like the squeeze play in baseball, the forward pass is a great play if it goes over, and a sucker play when it fails. Unquestionably the checks and balances in football have been upset by the forward pass.

The aerial game has unbalanced both attack and defense. It has given an exaggerated value to one play. It has caused coaches to neglect important features of the game in an effort to highly develop a passing game.

It is pretty tough for a team to gain, says 50 yards on plays through the line and runs around the end, and then have the opposition make up all that hard-earned ground by one 50-yard pass.

Limit the distance the ball can be passed, is one way to lessen the value of the play.

Another is to make the penalty more severe for the incomplete pass. The suggestion that after the first down, the ball shall be put in play from the spot where the thrower of the incomplete pass stood is another check.

TRADE SCHOOL BOYS FORM 5 CAGE TEAMS

Total of 28 Teams Now is Entered in New Boys Federation

Five more basketball teams organized among the students of the vocational school have made application to be admitted into the Appleton Boys Athletic federation. This makes a total of 28 basketball teams in the three divisions of the federation. The newly admitted teams will be assigned to divisions according to the age, height and weight of members of the teams.

The vocational school teams' lineup: Thursday Sharks—T. Radtke, captain; H. Tomow, C. Koempf, L. Selig, and W. Capitain.

Vocational School Black Bears—W. Vorbeck, J. Van Caster, C. Coffin, O. Baker, E. Wilzke, and R. Toek.

Vocational School Blue Jays—R. Whitman, captain; M. Genster, O. Barenwolf, C. Delrow, H. Hiltz.

HARNESS RACERS MEET TO PLAN 1922 SEASON

Cleveland, O.—Harness racers of America gathered here Monday to arrange dates and schedules for the 1922 season.

Schedules will be practically the same as last year, according to the stewards of the grand circuit, with the possible exception of the Lexington race which may be decided on a six day race instead of the annual two weeks carnival card, it was stated.

The Detroit Driving club seeks admission into the circuit and would revive the blue ribbon feature meetings on the Devonshire track in Windsor.

WEAVER WILLING TO WRESTLE HILL ON STRONG TERMS

Necedah Man So Confident that "Winner Take All" Suits Him

"I will wrestle Hill under the same terms that we met before—winner take all," said Buck Weaver, the Necedah grappler, just before he was matched to meet George Hill in Armory G Wednesday night. Weaver's sincere belief that he can defeat Hill when they meet again prompted him to tackle the local man under almost any terms.

Buck's only condition was that Barney Rhodes or some other competent man referee the bout. He is of the opinion that inefficient work on the part of the referee in the last bout had a lot to do with his defeat.

Hill just grinned when he heard of Weaver's offer. "Let him come," was his only comment. Hill says he is willing to meet any wrestler the promoters will bring here. He isn't harrasing any of them, he said. Hill doesn't promise to beat any of them but says he will do the best he can and figures that the best of 'em will know they have been in a match before they get through.

There is considerable interest in the Jan. 11 bout because of Weaver's good showing here a few weeks ago. He is rather a "crab" in the ring but is strong and fast and knows a lot about the game. It is sure to be a good match.

MEYER PRESS AND ENTERLINES WIN

Four Teams in Action in Industrial League on Y. M.

C. A. Floor

Your basketball teams of the Industrial-Commercial league were seen in action on the Y. M. C. A. floor Saturday evening. The Kimberly-Clark company's second team was defeated by the Meyer Press five, 10 to 1, in the first contest of the evening.

The Fox River Paper company team forfeited to the Auto Body Works quint for failure to appear. In the final game the Enterline Shoe company handed the Badger Furnace company a 32 to 8 drubbing.

The opening game between the Kimberly-Clark and the Meyer Press teams furnished a thrilling exhibition of floor work.

Dr. R. Pfume and Dan Courtney starred for the Meyer Press five in holding the Kimberly-Clark team scoreless but for one free throw. The Meyer Press outfit played a good guarding game.

The lineup: Kimberly-Clark—Marrow and Lilly, root, forwards; Brier, center; Bylow and S. Lowe, guards.

Meyer Press—C. Van Ryzin and P. Sutherland, forwards; R. Colvin, center; Dr. Pfume and Dan Courtney, guards.

The Badger Furnace five played without the services of A. Bradford, regular center. Cook was the main cog in the winning machine, scoring seven baskets. Dan Courtney and N. Bloomer played good floor games. The end of the first half saw the score 8 to 4 with the Badger Furnace five on the small end.

The lineup: Enterline—Hulbert and R. Kubit, forwards; Cook, center; N. Bloomer and D. Courtney, guards.

Badger Furnace company—Berge and Jung, forwards; Rehlein, center; Kositke and H. Schlegel, guards.

Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the lot owners of the Appleton Cemetery Association will be held at the secretary's office, Rooms 10 and 11, Odd Fellow's building, City of Appleton, Wisconsin, on the second Monday, being the ninth day of January, 1922, at 7:30 o'clock P. M., for the election of three trustees and the transaction of such other business that may come before the meeting.

Appleton, Wis., Dec. 24th, 1921.
FRED PETERSEN, President.
JOS. KOPFEND, JR., Secretary.

APPLETON TEAM BADLY WRECKED BY DESERTIONS

Stark, Normington and Ritchey Unable to Play Against Green Bay

Appleton's professional basketball team, under the management of George Dame, will play the Relmor WIeners of Green Bay Wednesday evening in the Bay City minus the services of Normington, Stark and Ritchey. Normington was injured in the Two Rivers game, breaking two bones in his ankle and will be unable to start in the Appleton lineup for some time, while Stark has left school and has accepted a position at Wisconsin Rapids.

Dame has secured the services of Thomas, formerly of the Milwaukee Bright Spot quint who will start at center. Thomas, assisted by Kubit, is whipping the local aggregation into shape for the coming fray. P. A. Napiecinski, formerly of the University of Wisconsin five will play one of the forward positions. Taylor, Waterpool and Dan Courtney, also will be used.

Green Bay and Appleton have battled twice, each winning one game. Green Bay will start with Wilson and McGinn, forwards; Rosenow, center; Wheeler and Klaus, guards.

NINE TEAMS PICK NEW TRAINING QUARTERS

New York—Many changes marked training camp plans of both major leagues Monday. Nine big league teams decided upon new locations for their spring workouts.

Texas will entertain six teams this year. Florida has lured four club, while Arkansas and Louisiana draw two major outfits each and Georgia and California one apiece.

Connie Mack has decided to take his Athletics to Eagle Pass, on the Mexican border. The Giants will go to San Antonio and the Yankees will go to New Orleans. The Braves have changed to St. Petersburg, Fla., while the Phillies have shifted to a brand new training center, Leesburg, Fla.

CHRISTIANITY IS ONLY FACTOR WHICH CAN SAVE AMERICA

Rosenberry Shows How Modern Men Have Improved Little Over Ancients

Christianity is the only factor in American civilization which ancient civilizations did not possess and if the United States does not fall just as the ancient nations of Europe and Asia did, it will be because its people exemplify the great principles of Christ in their daily lives.

This was the clear-cut message Judge Melvin B. Rosenberry gave to the supreme court judge, brought to Appleton in addressing the regular meeting of the people's forum at Lawrence Memorial chapel Sunday evening.

"A grave responsibility rests on our shoulders as the world's greatest nation," Judge Rosenberry said. "We think that today we face new conditions and new problems such as no previous nation has faced. In this we are deceiving ourselves. In all essential particulars the world is the same today as it was 10,000 years ago."

SAME CHARACTERISTICS

"It has the same great rivers, mountain peaks, oceans, islands. Only a few variations have occurred in the physical universe during these thousands of years. It has the same minerals, natural resources, plant life and animal life. Scientists have found that organized governments existed then like now. There was an organized society similar to ours. Records of inventions, agriculture and commerce have been found. Then as now the chief problems of living were production, distribution and transportation."

"Each nation experienced eras of progress followed by eras of depression. Each moved toward an apex of power and then declined. Man is physically the same being that he was 10,000 years ago. There is a serious doubt whether he has developed his mental power. The greatest epic poem of all history was written by Homer 5,000 years before Christ and other great works of intelligence were accomplished about that time."

"So that mentally, physically and materially we are the same as the peoples of those days. The only thing we have which they did not have was the great spiritual impulse brought into the world by Christ through his life and death among men. History records no parallel to this event."

BROUGHT GOLDEN RULE

"Christ brought to the world a new conception of God—that of a loving Father instead of a terrible deity. With this was the idea of universal love. He brought the ideal of the brotherhood of man with God as a common Father. He brought the

Richards' Act Is Hampered By Court's Order

"Richards, the wizard," who appeared in the Appleton theater here in November and who is now presenting his performance at Springfield, Ill., is prohibited from his act of "sawing a woman in half" by a temporary injunction issued by the United States District court here.

The injunction was granted by Judge Louis Fitzhugh to Sam Marquis, secretary for Horace Golding, New York theatrical producer, who declared the wizard's act violated a patent held by Golding. The injunction prevents him from presenting the act for 30 days.

Richards did not attempt this act while showing here.

golden rule. The only thing that can save the world today is an application of these fundamental principles. Not more preaching but plain, simple Christian living. If we cannot maintain these principles of Christian living, I see no reason why this nation should last.

"Democracy is not an accomplished fact. Who can say it is a permanent thing? Who can say it can solve problems confronting nations since the beginning of history? Who says we are superior to other peoples who have preceded us? If we are and if we do maintain our place among the great nations it must be because we exemplify these great principles of Christ, because this is the only thing we have that the ancient nations did not have."

BOOST PHONE RATES FOR RURAL COMPANY

A slight increase in rates has been granted the Seymour-Shiocton Telephone company by the Wisconsin railroad commission. The new rates call for an increase of 50 cents on business phones and 15 cents on residential phones. Rural rates have increased from $19 to $20 per year within a radius of six miles of Seymour and an increase of $3 per year on all phones outside that radius. The new ruling also allows free exchange between Seymour and Rose Lawn.

Speaks at Convention

J. E. Langenberg, president of the Wisconsin Retail Shoe Dealers association, is to be one of the speakers at the annual convention of the National Retail Shoe Dealers association at Chicago this week. His subject will be, "Cash vs. Credit."

Breaks Arm

Charles Bohl of the shoe firm of Bohl and Maeser, fractured his arm Sunday while cranking his car.

SHORTLINE RAILROAD IS SOLD FOR $55,000

The Green Bay and Western railroad has purchased the Waupaca-Green Bay railroad for $55,000. The purchase involves nine miles of track with siding, a station at Waupaca, rolling stock and right of way. The railroad, which extends from Scandinavia to Waupaca was sold to satisfy a mortgage held by the purchasing railroad. Attorney H. O. Fairchild presented the bid for the Green Bay company.

VETERANS MAKE PLANS FOR CONVENTION HERE

Attorney L. Hugo Keller and Charles H. Baker will attend a conference of American legion officials to be held in Sheboygan this week to formulate plans for the convention of post commanders and post adjutants of the state which is to be held in Appleton in March. Mr. Keller will represent the state executive committee and Mr. Baker, the Oneida Johnson post of the American legion.

48th RUMMAGE SALE OPENED TODAY

WOMENS APPAREL IS DRAWING CARD

Extreme Reductions on Fine Suits, Coats, Dresses and Skirts Draw Wide Attention

A large percentage of Rummage customers are largely concerned with the wearing apparel section during the first day of Rummage, preferring to snap up the bargains offered there and taking a chance on securing offerings in smaller articles during the succeeding days.

In many instances, prices on garments broke all former records for reductions today. In other cases, the reductions averaged only about half price but the garments were immediately bought for their extra attractiveness at the lesser reduction.

In spite of former coat sales held during the season, today saw a large quantity of wraps bought at Rummage prices. The variety offered was unexpectedly large. Several unusual coat values that attracted wide attention included a black coat of panne velvet with an inlay border design of black velvet. The former price was $125, but Rummage brought the coat down to $59.50.

Another $125 coat of mahogany panne velvet with a large collar of Siberian squirrel was reduced to $69.50.

Evening and dinner dresses stood out prominently by reason of radical reductions. A Roshanara model in navy with gray embroidery that formerly sold for $60, was reduced to $27.50. A mint green taffeta and lace dress, marked at $60, dropped in price to $25.50. Another $60 gown of Canton with chenille and gold embroidery found a purchaser at $25.

All through the entire stock of suits, amazing reductions found intense interest. A $60 suit of navy and tan velour was reduced to $14.75. A handsome suit of navy moussine with trimmings of Krimmer was reduced from $165 to $69.50. Another suit of the same material with a grey squirrel collar and pockets showed a reduction from $115 to $49.50.

Last Summer Rummage Sale Held in Heat

The files of the Rummage Sale News carry the account of the opening day of the last Rummage Sale, held last July. The opening days constituted the hottest week of the summer and the account goes on to state the efforts made throughout the store to lower the temperature.

Among other things, forty electric fans were used to cool the air, and hundreds of pounds of ice were chopped up during the week to supply water coolers and drinking fountains on the various floors.

The Winter Rummage Sale was marked today by a comfortable temperature within the store and moderate climate without.

BASEMENT STAGED MANY SURPRISES

The Basement staged a series of surprises today that were not forecast in any advance advertising of the sale. Such unusual values were continually offered that the news passed through the store and drew large numbers to the downstairs department.

The books that formerly sold at $1, were all put out for 50c. One customer bought a handsome leather copy of Milton works at 98c, the price last week was $2.25. The reductions in all leather bound editions were sufficient to sell out the stock early in the day. A $1.25 copy of "Tales of a Wayside Inn" went at 20c.

Quite a furore was occasioned in the Gift Shop when two customers eyed a $22.50 metal lamp at $3.95. Another bargain hunter picked up a $2.50 box of stationery at 39c.

A special Rummage selling of white china is especially worthy of attention. White cups and saucers in the St. Dennis and Mount Vernon shapes are to be had at $1.50 a dozen.

MEN'S SWEATERS

Men customers and their wives seized on the men's sweaters at 59c. Quite a number were offered at this price but a few minutes saw the last one sold.

WOMEN'S WEAR

The Basement ready-to-wear section ran a keen competition with the second floor department. Silk dresses bearing a $29.50 tag were rapidly sold at $9.50. Women's vests with glove silk tops, a quality that has been selling at $4, are Rummaged at 98c.

Shoppers Crowd Five Selling Floors in Rush for Bargains Offered in First Day of Famous Rummage Sale That Started at Nine This Morning

BALLOON RACE SALE FEATURE

Many Balloons Are Reported From Distant Points By Shoppers Attending Sale

A unique feature of this Rummage Sale is the balloon race. Each day twenty balloons are released from the roof of the store. The balloons are the ordinary small size, and each balloon bears a ticket that entitles the finder to one dollar in merchandise during the Rummage Sale.

An additional prize is offered for the balloon that is found the farthest distance from Appleton. As the balloons are turned in, they will be registered and at the end of the week the distances each has traveled will be checked up on an authoritative map.

This unusual race has attracted state wide attention and several balloons have already been found at surprising distances from Appleton.

The holder of the long distance record so far is Lowry Learman of Harbor Beach, Mich. Harbor Beach is on the shore of Lake Huron, north of Detroit. The balloon traveled four hundred and five miles before it came to earth and was found by the young man. The balloon left Appleton last Tuesday at one o'clock and dropped at Harbor Beach the following morning. The weathered condition of the manila tag attached indicates that the small craft passed through stormy weather before reaching its destination.

One hundred and fifty balloons in all will be sent out in the race and it is hoped that even greater distances will be reported before the close of the sale. The experiment is not only interesting for the data it gives on local air currents, but the stunt advertises Appleton and the Rummage Sale to people who have never heard of either.

The balloons are red, green or blue and will show up brightly against the snow on which they fall. Out-of-town people are especially urged to be on the lookout for them. Every one is worth money to the finder.

MILLINERY SECTION OFFERS SPRING MODELS IN RUMMAGE

The millinery department created a sensation among fashionable women by the advance offering of Spring models in the Rummage Sale today. At five dollars was displayed a comprehensive showing of the most attractive silk hats. New colors were a prominent feature and the favored trimmings were used.

These hats were so reasonably priced and so new that the demand more than came up to expectations. Such hats will be worn from now right through until summer.

The usual reductions in the millinery were surpassed in many cases this year. Many very exclusive models in the finer sorts of velvet hats were offered under four dollars for the most expensive qualities.

So many sailor hats are in demand that the offering of fine hatter's plush sailors at three dollars and a half proved exceedingly popular.

Mothers decided that the children should have extra headgear when the offerings of five dollar qualities at $1.50 and $1.98 were announced. The hats were especially good and a great many were sold during the day.

Comparing with other opening days, more hats were sold the first day of this Winter Rummage than in several years. The comparison speaks well for the appearance of Appleton streets during the remainder of the winter.

In addition to the second floor department, the fourth floor is featuring even greater reductions on headgear for boys and girls. Beaver hats that were $8.75 are offered at $3.75; $10. velvet hats are $2.50; and in the lower price range, one may buy $3.95 hats at 50c, and $1.50 hats at 25c. Tremendous reductions in toques and boys' sailor hats have also aroused special interest in this floor.

The Basement department leads in offering a big range of toques and tams in knitted effects at 39c.

HALF PRICE ON STOCK OF BLOUSES

The major item of the Fourth Floor today was the stock of overblouses that is offered at half price. Every overblouse is included, and among the lot are many of the most exclusive models of the season.

The showing was originally selected with particular care to include the best style effects. There are the very new sleeves and the same shades that are being forecast as the most favored for spring wear, and rumor also has it that blouses will be especially good for the spring season.

Everything points to the economy of buying overblouses at prices to be had during Rummage Week.

CHILDRENS GARMENTS ARE BIG VALUES

Children's garment offerings have not failed to arouse the most intense interest among all mothers who shopped in the department today. The stocks of children's coats and dresses are both very large and entirely comprehensive. Beginning this morning, every garment is marked at exactly half the former selling price and the resulting bargains are almost unprecedented.

Among the coats are many reproductions of Parisian importations. The materials of both coats and dresses are excellent and in coats there are rich fur trimmings that add to value and attractiveness.

The dress stock includes models of velveteen, velour serge, and jerseys in sizes from six to fourteen years. The former prices range from $7. to $40.—In the Rummage the garments can be purchased at half that.

Sweater reductions ran a close second to dresses and coats for popular favor among the younger set today. In all wool sweaters the reductions offered $9.75 values at $5.95; $8.50 values at $2.25. Former $5. fiber silk sweaters for children were great values at $1.95.

Woolens took a prominent place in discussions between shoppers in the store this morning. A number of remarkable values had already been announced through advance advertisements of the sale, and in addition to these were dozens of others.

Among the special reductions that were accorded the widest interest were $2.25 plaid coatings at $1.35. They were shown in brown, grey, tan and blue combinations and the full 54 inch width. Former $4.50 all wool velour coatings are reduced to $1.98.

Velour skirts in checks and plaids are marked at $1.98 for quality. These have been selling at $4.50 a yard. Former $5. plaid skirts, in light colors suitable for spring, are marked at $2.88.

Two velvet items are much favored by Rummage bargain hunters. Former $3.50 and $4.75 costume velvet is marked at $2.93. The colors include grey, navy, brown and wine. Former $5.50 chiffon velvet in grey only is priced at $3.69.

These extra reductions will do much to bring the woolen section into high popularity with shoppers during Rummage week.

Pettibone's forty-eighth Rummage Sale opened at nine o'clock with the enthusiasm that has characterized Rummage opening days for twenty-four years.

In spite of the fact that many country roads were almost impassable, the usual number of out-of-town customers were seen at the opening hour and more continued to arrive throughout the day.

Extensive advertising of the values offered, and the long established reputation of Rummage bargains aroused local interest to the boiling point, and sharp competition was noted for many single items.

One customer remarked that today's crowds and offerings seemed more like the old days before the war than anything she had seen since. Certainly no crowd of bargain hunters was ever so optimistic.

The store staff was greatly augmented to care for the throngs of customers, and all were served with a luncheon at noon in the annex. This meal has come to be a regular feature of Rummage and is always looked forward to by the selling force.

Elevators spent a busy day in rapid flights from Basement to roof. So well was this feature handled that fewer customers than ever before used the stairways.

The Winter Rummage Sale will continue throughout the week. Many departments report late express shipments that will increase the interest tomorrow and the days to come.

Shoe Sale All Through Week

The usual custom of the store was followed again this season in beginning the Midwinter Sale of Shoes a week before Rummage. This enables those interested in extra footwear offerings to avail themselves of the advantages of this sale and still be able to devote all their time to the succeeding week to the Rummage Sale.

The cold weather of last week undoubtedly kept many indoors who were anxious to buy shoes at the advertised sale prices. All offerings of this sale will be continued throughout Rummage.

Special reductions on Laird-Schober high shoes, and among the high points of the shoe sale and well worth mentioning again this week. Former $16. shoes are marked at $4.95; very good shoes that were formerly priced at $10, $12, $14 and $15, a pair are reduced to $5.95. A choice lot of Laird-Schober boots and oxfords that were formerly marked as high as $18, are now reduced to $9.85.

Extremely attractive reductions are also effective on the entire stock of pumps and oxfords.

Miss Malone Leaves for California Trip

Today was the first time in history that Ella Malone failed to welcome Rummage Shoppers in the Pettibone store.

Miss Malone left last Saturday morning for Los Angeles, California, where she will spend four months as the guest of the firm. The year of 1921 brings Miss Malone's store service to thirty-eight years and the vacation away from wintry Wisconsin is intended as some small recognition of the long and faithful work of this widely known senior member of Pettibone's staff.

The woolen goods department is now under the charge of Miss Marlette.

POHLSON NOVELTIES

The entire stock of Pohlson novelties was Rummaged in the Gift Shop at 9c, 19c and 39c. These low prices compare favorably with the former quotations which ran up to $3.75.

YARD GOODS

Many serges and plaids were cleared out today. 80c qualities went as low as 39c. Fancy ric rac braids were priced at 3c for 20c and 25c qualities. A linen table cloth occasioned quite an argument this morning when the price ticket was discovered to read $1.95.

Silks Are Given Much Favorable Comment

The close of the first day's Rummage business indicates a great interest in the silk offerings which were so prominently featured today. This department has made special preparations to offer unusual bargains during the week. Miss Lane secured a number of items in Chicago last week that spoke for themselves today.

For garments that will be worn throughout the winter and spring seasons—satin Canton was a favorite. Three shades, wall flower, navy and black are obtainable in Rummage at $3.19 a yard for the 40 inch width. Other offerings in silks included charmeuse at $1.69; Fairy-spun at $2.65; Heavy black messaline at $1.49; and taffeta at $1.10.
